LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

We desire to procure the services of a local agent in every Postoface District lu the State. Will our friends act, or procure the services of some efficient person in our behalf? Belleving that the circutation of the Democrat may be materially extended, we make this appeal to our triends in its behalf.

The Boston Advertiser (Republican)

We hold it for an incontestable truth that neither men nor money will be forthcom-ing for this war if once the people are im-pressed with the belief that the abolition of slavery and not the defense of the Union is its object; or that its original purpose is converted into a cloak for some new design of seizing this opportunity for the destruction of the social system of the South. The people are heart and soul with their Government in support of any constitutional undertaking; we do not believe that they will follow it if they are made to suspect that they are decoyed into the support of any unconstitutional designs.

to an end; that as an end emancipation all they had. would be unwarranted, but as a means it is to be commended and supported.

This is but the old doctrine that the end justifies the means. The l'resident's friends treat the matter otherwise. To put down the rebellion any means are justifiable. This abolishes all distinctions between right and wrong. There is no law but necessity, and the President is to be judge of that necessity. The President may establish slavery in every State, trample down may, in fact, dispense with Congress, arrest and imprison its members, or as many of them as he may judge necessary. He may seize the treasury and disburse its contents without any act of Congress. 11e, in fact, potism of the most terrible sort. We had fore. thought that no State had a right to nullify a Federal law unquestionably constitutional, or so pronounced by the Supreme Court; but a State has as much right to nullify u law of the United State and the Constitution of the United States as the Federal Government has to nullify a State law or a State Constitution. Our Governors are all sworn to support their State Constitutions, and to see that State laws are faithfully ex ecuted. This oath is as binding on them as the oath of the President.

A rebellion against a State is no less culpable than a rebellion against the United states. No power on earth has a right to violate a State Constitution or a State law made in pursuance of it. This Union is governed by the Federal Constitution and laws, and by State Constitutions and laws One is as sacred as the other, and he who he claims the title of (h)our Governor. tramples on one is as guilty as he who tramples on the other, no more and no less

The President of the United States openly avows his purpose to defy the laws and Constitutions of States; the rebels defy the Constitution and laws of the United States. It would be difficult to show any real difference in the acts of the two, as far as a contempt for laws and Constitutions is concerned.

This idea of adopting unconstitutional and unlawful means to accomplish an end varied gently-lessening curves down to the can't be tolerated. There is no guessing delicate wrists, with its tiniest, almost iminconsistent with all ideas of constitutional

We have frequently stated the probability that Mr. Lincoln's proclamation would have no practical effect, and still more frequently that it should have none. A policy whose advocates frankly admit that it has no foundation in the Constitution, certainly ought to have no effect. In this cpinion we have been joined with all the on the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad ran conservative press of the country. They are not, however, the only witnesses we can throwing the cars off the track, and instantbring to show what effect it will in all probability have. The President, in his reply to the emancipationists of Chicago, says: But we will talk over the merits of the case. What good would a proclamation of emancipation from me do, especially as we are now situated? I do not want to issue a must necessarily be inoperative, like the Is there a single court, or magistrate, or iudividual that could be influenced by it there? the late law of Congress, which I approved, and which offers protection and freedom to slaves of rebel masters who come within our lines? Yet I cannot learn that that

This we take to be a true statement of the case. The proclamation, in its effects, will be nothing. There has nothing occurred since the above-mentioned address was made, to alter, in any way, the condition of things Why, then, it is asked, should the President issue this mere brutum fulmen? We believe we can see what direally a radical-that he inclines naturalty towards a more conservative policy. It is known, however, that for some months he has had as much awe of the bullying of radicals as a spanked baby of its mother's slipper. Now, between his conscience and his fears, we can imagine some such train of reasoning as follows passing through his mind:

To turn the slaves immediately free among women and children, in the midst of this war, would be wrong.

I am urged to issue a proclamation, and Greeley will scarify me if I don't.

I ought not to do it, because it is unconstitutional and wrong. But if I do, it will have no effect whatever. It will be just as I told the emancipationists of Chicago, and by doing it I shall silence Greeley.

Mr. Morehead, in a speech before a Secession club in Liverpool, recites a conversation he and others had with Mr. Lincoln, in which the latter said: "Mr. Rives, if Virginia will stay in the Union, I will withdraw the troops from Fort Sumpter." Another version of this conversation is, that "if the Virginia Convention will refuse to secede and adjourn sine die, I will withdraw the troops from Fort Sumpter." Virginia, however, did secode. The troops were not withdrawn. It is idle to speculate now on what might have been if something had or had not happened.

The news from Dayton is rather startling. The mob that collected to caplaw has caused a single slave to come over ture and execute Brown was only quelled by resort to military power. He then took a pistol and fired it, the ball entering the head at the right temple, passing through the head, and lodging just inside the skin on the left side. The skull is completely shattered, and the pistol was evidently held close to the head. Major R. was known as a pleasant, social gentleman, but sometimes gave way to fits of despondency, and it is believed that he was in a fit of temporary insanity when he committed the rash act. For several days which, without any interference or demon he has not been in a condition to attend to his duties at the Navy Yard, and on night before last he told his clerk that he would be there to-day if he was alive. ADDITIONAL BETAILS OF THE CAPTURE OF GALVESTON AND SABINE PASS.

Files of Texas papers to the 13th of October contain some interesting details of the cupture of Galveston by the Union forces:

[From the Galveston Union, Oct. to.] GALVESTON, Oct. 9-5 P. Han. J. W. Morre, Mayor pro tem. of Calveston, communicated to the undersigned in substance us follows: Wednesday evening, October 8th, a meeting of citizens was held in the City Hall for the purpose of taking into consideration the state of affairs in the city, in consequence of the evacuation by the military, and the departure from the city of the Mayor, and a majority of the Aldermen. The meeting appointed Mr. Jas. W. Moore, the oldest magistrate in the county, Mayor protem. for the city, and clothed him with full power over muncipal and police regulations, during the present emergency.

Part of the enemy's fleet, consisting of four steamers, raised anchor at nine o'clock A. M. Thursday, steamed slowly and cauti ously up to the city and took position at the foot of the principal streets, the Harriet Lane being in position to command the street leading to the Custom House. The theet came to anchor about ten A. M.

But very few people witnessed the proceedings of the fleet, and the few present looked on sad and gloomily.

The fire brigade was stationed at the head of all the wharves, with instructions to show any Federal party that might land to the Mayor's office. No communication took place between the fleet and the city authorities up to one P. M. At about this hour the commander's steamer fired three shots towards the west end of the island, whereupon the Mayor pro tem, accompanied by Messrs. T. M. League and Capinin Haviland, at his own request, went to the end of St. Cyr's wharf and made a signal to the fleet, which was answered, and shortly a boat was sent to the wharf and took the party to the com mander's ship. Our Mayor requested Com marder Renshaw to communicate to him his intentions in regard to the city, informing him at the same time of the abandon-ment of the city by the military, of the ab-sence of the Mayor and City Council, and of his appointment as Mayor pro tem. by a meeting of citizens. veston exiled by this event we sincerely

Commander Reushaw replied that he had come for the purpose of taking possession of the city; that the city was at his mercy under his guns; that he should not interfere in the municipal affairs of the city; that the citizens might go on and conduct their business as heretofore; that he did not intend to occupy the city for the pres-ent, and until the arrival of a military commander; but that he intended to hoist the United States flag upon the public buildings, and that his flag should be respected. Whereupou the Mayor pro tem. answered that he could not guarantee to him the protection of the flag; that he would do verythly in his rower but the protection. everything in his power, but that persons over whom he had no control might take down the flag and creato a difficulty.

Commander Renshaw replied that, although in his previous communications with the military commander he had insisted that the flag should be protected by the city, still he thought it would be onerous upon the good citizens; and, to avoid any difficulty like that which occurred in New Orleans, he would waive that point, and when he sent the tlag ashere he would send a sufficient force to protect it, and that he would not keep the flag flying for more than a quarter or half an hour—sufficient to show the absolute possession. Commander Renshaw further said that would insist upon the his men in charge of an officer to come shore and walk the streets of the city, but that he would not permit his men to come on shore indiscriminately or in the night; that, should his men insult citizens, he gave the Mayor the right to arrest and report them to him, when he would punish them more rigidly than we possibly could; but, on the other hand, should any of his men be insulted or shot at in the streets of Galveston, or if any of his ships or houts he shot at from the land or wharves, he would hold the city responsible and open his broadsides on the same instantly; that his guns were kept shotted and double shotted for that purpose; that it was the determina-tion of his Government to hold Galveston at all hazards until the end of the war; and that we could not take the port from him without a navy. The Mayor pro tem. asked his intentions in relation to the railroad bridge. The auswer was at first declined; but afterwards In conversation he stated that he did not desire the destruction of the bridge if he was not interfered with: that he would permit the train to run up to this side of the bridge with provisions, which must be carfact that he had inflicted upon himself two ried from there to town in vehicles. The wounds—one with a small sword, in the side, the intention evidently having been to town, and no communication whatever should be held by water. Commander Renshaw stated, in conclusion, that he had already advised the Admiral to send a cargo of flour, to which our party said nothing, and departed.

Shortly after the return of the Mayor and and sailors, including about half a dozen negroes, was sent ashore from the fleet. which landed at Kuhn's wharf, and prowhich, without any interference or demonstration by the bystanders, they raised the United States flag.

After half an hour, at three P. M, the flag was quietly taken down, and the deforty-two years of age and a widower, but tachment marched back through the same streets to their boars, and returned to the fleet. The Mayor pro tem. and Thomas M. League, Esq, subsequently, at four P. M, addressed the people at the market, stating the substance of their interview with th

Federal commander. A resolution of thanks was tendered Messrs. Moore, League and flaviland by the meeting, for the satisfactory manner in which they conducted their difficult task.

HIGH PRIVATE. FALL OF GALVESTON. (From the Houston (Texas) Telegraph, Oct 13.

At length an event, by many anticipated, city of the Gulf, has fallen. The minions of Lincoln have made it their nest, and, as we have seen in similar cases, there will be From lesterday's Evening News.

hatched from it, if the utmost vigilance be not exercised, untold miseries to the State. Un the 9th, the truce agreed on between the cuemy and the soldiery having expired, they first assumed over it their hate-ful domination. The armament employed by them in this conquest we have hereto fore stated, and we have likewise stated has happened. Galveston, the beautiful that it is not their present purpose, as far as we are advised, to garrison it with troops. All told, their force on the fleet is said to be about 500 men.

To whom censure for this most serious

alamity to our State is to be imputed we cannot, nor will we undertake to, say-in act, we do not know. It is not now with the past, but the future we have to do. We, however, cannot avoid saying that we see, with regret, now that (lalvestion has fallen, and the people do not hesitate to expres their deep condemnation of those to whom the country looked as the persons expected to avert this blow. Upon them it is now the fashion not only to charge a supineness criminal in its nature, but a most glaring incompeteucy and imbecility. Whether these censures be just or not, as we have already stated, it is not within our competency to say. But it appears to us that if founded in truth many of those who employ these censures are them selves not free from blame. If l be true that the military authorities were either imbecile or neglectful, the fact that it was so has been long apparent, for long has it been believed that Galveston was in peril, and knowing it, it thus became the duty, at least the right, of those whose interests were immediately involved to put in operation measures to avert the apprehended calamity. It is true that cannon were removed from the place, but it appears to us that, by timely remonstrance, this might have been prevented; and there certainly existed no sufficient reason why the people might not themselves have otherwise prepared to meet the foe. But we repeat that it is not with the past, but the present, we have to do, and as the place has fallen, it now becomes the part of patriotism to so aid the authorities, as to confine the enemy to his present limits, and thereby prevent him from using his conquest to the further injury of the State. It is no time for quer-ulous complaint. With the citizens of Galdoubi, does every generous, right-minded person in the State. To the citizens of Texas at large we must and do appeal in this cinergency, and we carnestly invoke at their hands the promp lisplay of all their energy and of all their patriolism. From without no help is to be expected, and within ourselves must we find resources with which to meet and repel this iuvasion of our soil. Our resources happily are ample, and all required of us is to sys-tematize and render them effective at the proper time. In every county the citizens should organize companies of minute men, ready to respond to the call at a moment's notice. Every arm should be kept in order, and supplies of fixed ammunition provided. Officers, too, that confusion be avoided. should be chosen. If all this be properly done, we may bid defiance to any force the emy may send against us. On other fields the presumption that we are unprepared to meet him. Banish from him this delusion. Let us make ready, now that we have the chance, and should the enemy dare to invade our State—to pollute our homes by his hated presence—we will repeat those feats The Secretary of War has order lustrious on the bloody plains of Gaines' Mill and Munassas, and which, in all future ages, will render the name of Texian

To those of us who have watched the ineldents of this war it can scarcely be need essary to appeal. Their resentment needs no stimulus. Resistance to the end is their fixed and unalterable purpose. Alas! what a picture does our sister State of Louisians not exhibid Within her borders the tracks of the worse than barbarian foe are every where marked with blood, spoliation, and rapine—many of her people exiles from homes once lovely but now desolate. Shall we be treated with less severity than they To hill us into security, moderation and le niency may be their present watchwords. Trust them not. Treachery and every kind of baseness have marked them throughout their infamous course. Eternal vigitance, Texans, is the price of liberty. need anything from them to convince us of the spirit by which our foe is animated, it stands before us in the full of day, in the emancipation proclamation of Lincoln-the most superlatively infamons thing that the history, of nations ex hibits. From a people ignorant of the har-mouising deetrines of the holy Christian faith-a religion alien to an idea and purpose so atrocious-a fell deel of the kind night possibly he expected. But that, in this era of light, liberty and religion-and that, too, from a people that has claimed to act as a "pillar of fire by night and a pillar of cloud by day" to almost all the rest of the world-a thing of the kind should serlously emenate, will by the future historian be recorded as something incredible from is very atrocity—something too monstrous for the human mind to believe. Think of it, citizens of Texas; your foe, by a solemn roclamation, puts you without the pale of aw, and consigns you to all the horrors of a servile war. Prepare, theu, Texans, to meet the Vandal, and to visit upon him the harrid outrages he meditates against you.

The New Albany Ledger of yesterday has the following items

On Wednesday night last, we are informed. Major Holloway, of Shackelford's cavalry, with two or three companies, left Henderson, and made a sublen dash upor the guerrilla camp near Madisonville, killing four and capturing sixteen of them. The rest escaped by a rapid flight.

The prisoners captured were taken lulo Henderson on Saturday morning, and will probably be paroled—this being now the fashion in such cases made and provided. What an absolute burlesque on war! The idea of paroling robbers and cold-blooded murderers is an exclusive and probably patented idea of the present "power that be." Hanging is thr only remedy for this guer-rilla warfare, and its application should be no longer delayed.

We learn that the guerrillas are again having things their own way in the neighborhood of Caseyville. They have a camp near the town, and number 2,500. They make nightly forays into the town, and rob all they come across.

Johnson's and Scobee's guerrillas have ately been depredating about Madisonville,

Rolkins county, stealing horses, cattle, provisions, &c., and committing all kinds f outrageson the Union eltlzens. Wonder if the late Methodist Conference at Owensboro is yet satisfied with the Repeated Rumors of the Capture orthodoxy, loyalty, and piety of the Reverned Guerrilla Scobee.
